

A black and white photograph of a modern architectural complex. The building features multiple curved facades covered in a fine, repeating grid pattern, possibly made of glass or metal. The curves create a dynamic, undulating effect across the entire structure. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the texture of the grid and the smoothness of the curves against a bright sky.

instituto de arte contemporânea